The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,3,5 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Soper.

Figure 4 shows structure as claimed.

Claims 1,3,5,6 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Englebert.

See figure 3.

Claims 1-5 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rassekhi.

Figures 1 and 2 show a saddle having a cushion 37 with a plurality of downwardly open cavities, a foam layer 8, and a cover 7.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either Soper, Englebert or Rassekhi in view of Bourla.

The use of rods and apertures for securing a cushion member to a base is shown to be old and well known in the art by Bourla (fig. 6), and in view of this suggestion, to have utilized such a securing means for the saddles of Soper, Englebert or Rassekhi, would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art. Whether the apertures are located in the base or the cushion is considered a matter of design and an obvious reversal of parts.

Claims 7 and 8 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
